1. Do you agree or disagree with the following statement? It is not important for families to have meals together regularly.

In the 21st century, there have been dramatic improvements in diverse aspects of people' s lives. However, people are becoming increasingly busy and sometimes are overwhelmed by endless work or study. As a result, less time is devoted into families and people may think having meals regularly with family members no longer matters. In my opinion, this is totally mistaken and it is significant for people to eat with family members regularly despite the change of time. My reasons are as follows.

2. Do you agree or disagree with the following statement: People should take time to relax with hobbies or physical activities that are very different from what they do at work.

Conventional wisdom would suggest that one should pursue a diverse range of interests, especially interests unrelated to what one does at work. I generally agree.

3. Do you agree or disagree with the following statement: Parents should allow their children to make mistakes and let them learn from their own mistakes.

Many parents today have a tendency to prevent their children from making choices that the parents believe to be wrong. This protective instinct has certain benefits; however, I still think letting children choose their own path and learn from their mistakes is a better parenting method.

4. Do you agree or disagree with the following statement: Playing sports teaches people lessons about life.

Some see sports as something with little application to everyday life. Sports, they say, are at best good for keeping people fit. But I disagree. Sports can teach us many lessons that can be applied to life in general.

As a result, less time is devoted into families and people may think having meals regularly with family members no longer matters. In my opinion, this is totally mistaken and it is significant for people to eat with family members regularly despite of the change of time. My reasons are as follows.

All in all, considering the essential role that regular eating with families plays on children, companion and the elder, I insist that it is still of great importance for people to eat with families regularly nowadays.

2. Do you agree or disagree with the following statement: People should take time to relax with hobbies or physical activities that are very different from what they do at work.

Conventional wisdom would suggest that one should pursue a diverse range of interests, especially interests unrelated to what one does at work. I generally agree.

People should find hobbies that diverge from their professional occupations. Not only does this allow us to become a well-rounded people, it also prevents burn-outs and enriches our lives by bringing us in contact with interesting individuals we'd never meet otherwise.

3. Do you agree or disagree with the following statement: Parents should allow their children to make mistakes and let them learn from their own mistakes.

Many parents today have a tendency to prevent their children from making choices that the parents believe to be wrong. This protective instinct has certain benefits; however, I still think letting children choose their own path and learn from their mistakes is a better parenting method.

In conclusion, if parents want their children to survive and thrive in their lives, it is wise to let children make mistakes and learn from real lessons.

4. Do you agree or disagree with the following statement: Playing sports teaches people lessons about life.

Some see sports as something with little application to everyday life. Sports, they say, are at best good for keeping people fit. But I disagree. Sports can teach us many lessons that can be applied to life in general.

Sports can actually teach us much about life. Through sports, we learn the value of teamwork, the right way to deal with failure, and how to conduct ourselves honorably in relation to competitors. These are all invaluable lessons.
